

Janáček Philharmonic Orchestra announces audition for International Orchestral Academy (IOA)

Janáček Philharmonic, based in Ostrava is one of the leading symphonic orchestras of the Czech Republic. Long orchestral tradition, typical bohemian sound and progressive repertoire are very much praised both by local audience and international reviewers. Excellence in performing not only Janáček, but most of the late-romantic to contemporary repertoire is one of the orchestra 's strengths. In 2021-22 the orchestra hosts guest conductors such as the chief conductor Vassily Sinaisky or Domingo Hindoyan, Lionel Bringuier, Andrey Boreyko, Risto Joost, Gabriel Bebeslea, and soloists such as Bruno Philippe, Danjulo Ishizaka, Sergei Babayan, Nikolay Lugansky, Alena Baeva, and Frederico Colli.

The International Orchestral Academy (IOA) is suitable especially for students and graduates of music performance programmes at university level. The internship is unpaid is hence highly suitable for Erasmus+ recipients.

Trainees will gain hands-on orchestral experience in one of the leading Czech orchestras, taking part in most of the orchestra performances (subscription concerts, touring projects both locally and internationally). Members of IOA are also strongly encouraged to perform a chamber concert together.

IOA opens positions in these sections for the period of spring semester: 04.02.2022 – 30.6.2022:
